TIM LINKINWATER advises all his brother Clerks and Book-keepers to use Preston's Premium Ink, in their new Books.
Tim uses no other in his pens, the books of "Cheeryble Brothers." "Fluids," says he, "have come upon us in floods—pea-green, grey, red and cerulean—a second deluge, gentlemen—yet this Ink stands fast and firm in the esteem of all who have used it. Can any thing be equal to the plain, bright contrast of black and white? There never was, nor never can be—the thing is 'nt possible—and what Ink flows so freely in the steel pen as Preston's, or takes a purer and more durable black upon the paper? Is there a better judgment than Tim's?—See Nickleby, pp 234 5.
This Ink has long been used and preferred in the Post Office, and several of the State, County, and City Offices, and Banks.—Certificates can be shown—the Diploma of the M. N. C. A. was awarded for it at the late Fair in this city.
Sold by J. P. PRESTON, Chemist, No 79 Federal street, Boston, in any quantity, and in bottles of all sizes, securely packed. Also by Stationers and Hardware dealers generally.
It may be had in a new style of bottles, with spout lips; devised by J. P. P., for the convenience of offices and counting rooms.

POLITICAL.

LETTERS TO YOUNG MEN—No. 3.
YOUNG MEN—Hypocrisy is said to be the homage vice pays to virtue. What is the appeal to the days of "the patriot Presidents" by their former revilers, but an involuntary homage to the greatness of their names, and to the truth of their principles? When Webster, Leigh, Otis, Davis, Quincy, Saltonstall, and the host of old federalists who now are Harrison democrats, "died in the wool," invoke the names of JEFFERSON and MADISON to their aid, and call upon you to unite in "the common object," the restoration of the days of their government, will you not require some evidence to show that they have changed their principles before you answer to their call? or will you consider it that sort of homage that vice pays to virtue—rank hypocrisy? or will you interpret their meaning to be the restoration of the days of the government of old federalism?

LEVERETT SALTONSTALL is a WHIG LEADER. He is a whig member of Congress. He is a member of the whig executive committee for the Union—the same committee that ever and anon sends forth its bulletins, announcing the progress of "the common object." And he is now delivering harangues over the country, to aid his cause. Hence he is an official personage—as much so as DANIEL WEBSTER. He is a representative of "whig principles," as much so as "honest JOHN DAVIS." What then does he mean, when he signs a paper calling upon you to unite in effecting the celebrated "restoration?" Who are his "patriot presidents?" How stands he in relation to the policy of THOMAS JEFFERSON? Is he desirous "TO TRIUMPH OVER THE SWAY OF HIS FEDERAL PRINCIPLES?"—TO ELEVATE OUR FEELINGS AS A NATION BY EFFECTING A COMPLETE REVOLUTION IN OUR REGARD FOR HIS OPINIONS? When the whigs UNIVERSALLY refrain from proposing any system of national policy for adoption by the people in their public resolutions and public addresses can any other course be taken to get at their views, than to consider the former course of their most prominent leaders as the true exposition of their present "principles?" Their presidential candidate confessed at Dayton, Sept. 10, 1840, "I have peculiar notions of government." "I am no statesman by profession." And frankly intimates that he shall rely more upon the HEART than the HEAD. And it is generally confessed that he was selected by the not wish to see another "TOUCH OF DEMOCRACY!" But hear this Harrison democrat! talk about the "ruinous," "wicked," and "oppressive war," as he terms it.

"It would be easy to show that the war was MADE FROM UNJUSTIFIABLE MOTIVES, THAT IT WAS UNJUST IN THE BEGINNING, IS UNJUST STILL, AND MUST REMAIN UNJUST until our government have offered to make peace on reasonable terms, and in a proper manner, in the spirit of peace."

After inveighing against the administration of Madison for its alleged errors, he proceeds to the remedy.

"Can we further hope for relief from our rulers? We have waited and waited, until our forbearance has been mistaken for tameness. Shall we again remonstrate? It would be unworthy of Massachusetts to afford amusement to our rulers by another remonstrance. Besides, they are WITHOUT MONEY, WITHOUT CREDIT, WITHOUT CONFIDENCE, AND IT MAY WELL BE DOUBTED WHETHER THEY NOW HAVE THE POWER, EVEN IF THEY HAD THE INCLINATION, TO RAISE US FROM THE GULPH OF RUIN INTO WHICH THEY HAVE PLUNGED US. OUR REMEDY IS IN OUR OWN HANDS."

The "remedy" consisted in adopting the fifth resolution calling the HARTFORD CONVENTION. After "demonstrating" that the convention was "constitutional," he goes on thus—

"If it is constitutional, is it then expedient to call a convention at this time? Some may doubt whether the time [the italics here are as they appear in the speech.] has yet come for it. Mr Speaker, "now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation," Massachusetts ought to have taken the alarm long since, and we should not then have been reduced to our present condition."

"What are the objections to this resolve, has a direct tendency to destroy the union of states." This cry of dissolution of the Union LONG PARALYSED EVERY ATTEMPT TO REDRESS GRIEVANCES. IT HAS PRESSED LIKE A N MARE UPON US, CONJURING UP THE HIDEOUS OBJECTS TO THE IMAGINATION AND STAGNATING THE BLOOD, AN PRIVING US OF THE POWER OF MOVING LIMB TO CHASE AWAY THE MONSTERS WHO ARE THE REAL FRIENDS OF THE UNION, THOSE WHO DISREGARD ITS OBJECTS, OR THOSE WHO ADH
